

MACCABIUSA MEDAL OF HONOR

JED MARGOLIS

Jed Margolis has devoted over four decades to strengthening Jewish identity through sports, leading in both the JCC Movement and Maccabi USA. As Executive Director of Maccabi USA for 17 years, he helped achieve record American participation in international Maccabi competitions across five continents. At the St. Louis JCC, he founded the St. Louis Jewish Sports Hall of Fame, brought the JCC Maccabi Games to the city, and directed the opening of the Marilyn Fox JCC. His leadership earned him national honors, including the Dick Steinberg “Good Guy” Award and the Pillar of Achievement Award from the Philadelphia Jewish Sports Hall of Fame.

A native of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, Margolis was honored as a Distinguished Alumnus and received the JCC Association’s Arthur Brodtkin Award for outstanding service. Jed remains active with Maccabi USA, Maccabi World Union, and the Global Jewry Advisory Board. Now President of the International Jewish Sports Hall of Fame, Margolis continues to inspire Jewish pride, connection, and excellence worldwide.
